OVERVIEW & OBJECTIVE

Each palm in an oil palm plantation is a revenue generating unit. Therefore, it is crucial that planting materials which are sourced from nursery and planted in fields are of superior quality. Although area wise nursery is small in size, it houses large densely populated seedlings at juvenile stage needing great care and expertise in order that it produces uniformly strong and healthy planting materials realising large oil yields for 25 years or more.

Therefore, good establishment and upkeep of nursery is of paramount importance. Apparently, not all estate personnel have experience in nursery practices. Those who had worked in new development projects would have acquired knowledge and experience in this specialized segment. It cannot be overemphasized that personnel void of experience but being tasked to charge of nursery duties receive adequate training in all aspects of nursery set up and operating practices.
